School Profile

Navajo is a rural, K-12 school located northeast of Altus in Jackson County, Oklahoma. The district consists of 146 square miles and includes the communities of Friendship, Headrick, Martha, and Warren. Navajo has seen growth in both size and numbers over the previous years. Navajo provides a safe environment where emphasis is on self-discipline. We believe that students should attend school in a place where they can learn and grow both physically and emotionally. We are committed to excellence.

Superintendent's Report

It is a pleasure to present you with this state of the schools report for the 2006-07 School Year. Navajo students have continued to excel in both academics and extra-curricular activities. The school is sound in both instructional areas and financial areas. We are blessed with highly qualified instructional personnel and parents who are willing to help in the effort to educate their children. I wish to thank the Navajo Board of Education and our patrons for their continued support on behalf of the Navajo School District. May we continue to reach toward improving our educational programs here at Navajo.
